

SAS COURSE DEVELOPMENT MINI-GRANT PROGRAM

Would you buy a car without first taking it for a test drive? Of course not. Likewise, we don't expect faculty to teach a course using SAS® software without test-driving it first. The SAS Course Development Mini-Grant Program is a new, competitive grant program from the SAS Academic Program offering participating faculty the following benefits:

- A six-month grant of SAS software to participants who evaluate the software with an eye toward creating a course using SAS software. Nearly any software that's appropriate for a classroom setting is available for this grant.
- After six months, participating faculty have the option to license the software at regular education first-year fees.
- Curriculum designers are available to work with interested faculty on course development and implementation.

For more information on the SAS Course Development Mini-Grant Program or for a grant application, please contact us at minigrant@sas.com. This program currently is available to U.S. schools only.
