

Paper 182-2009

Panel Discussion: sasCommunity.org

ABSTRACT

This panel discussion will be led by several power users of the site, with input from the principal architects and experts.

The sasCommunity.org site is sponsored by the SAS® Global Forum Users Group and is based on wiki technology (the same software that drives Wikipedia) and is not at all like a traditional Web site. The panel will discuss how this collaborative networking facility can be leveraged to support your use of SAS® software.

The topics to be addressed include:

- types of information that are available on sasCommunity.org
- tips for successfully finding information on sasCommunity.org
- recent enhancements
- how to contribute to sasCommunity.org, including submitting a “Tip of the Day”
- future plans

Extensive audience participation is planned. Come prepared with your suggestions and questions. Regardless of whether you are an active user or you've never visited sasCommunity.org, there will be something in the panel discussion for you.
